Garden Companion.

Outdoor life and hunting have always been of a huge importance to me because I love cooking and always have, and cooking sympathetically and with understanding of a product you really need to have the knowledge of where it's from, and the process of getting it to the table.

I bought my first airgun donkeys years ago and the memories that flood through are times when I would be out on a summer evening rabbit shooting, then being able to implement them onto a menu fills me with great pride.

Now days there are people who shoot for us here at the hall, but with the each rabbit that comes in you can't help wanting to be back out relaxing on a summer evening ready for a shoot.

As Eco Hotel of the Year it's a hugely important aspect of the estate – to live in harmony with our garden companions. We plant three and they enjoy one, they play an integral eco part in the gardens.

Boat Trip

Fond memories of holiday boat trips with my family down in Devon and Cornwall. My dad would always take me fishing off a boat and it was Mackerel, Mackerel, Mackerel. With Dads help we set the BBQ up and I'd just get cooking, my instincts kicked in or Granny's guidance helped me along.

Best of Wales

Llangoed is your archetypal Country House Hotel and with that you need a classic. Breconshire has some of the best in the world. So here is some of our own reared lamb from Llangoed's farm next door.

Apple Scrumping

As a lad, and who didn't do this!! Me and my mate used to go scrumping for apples round the posh houses with big gardens. We'd jump the fence and nick the apples and leg it back over.

Fortunately here at Llangoed we have over 30 different types of apples to choose from, which is great, as I couldn't jump the fence now...
